AGENT: Kat Kerr, The Donald Maass Literary Agency

BIO: I’m a Palestinian-American author of literary and speculative fiction. My stories are inspired by my diverse background and upbringing in the Middle East. I am currently working on a fantasy novel that takes pits the kingdoms of the mystical Jinn against one another, written in the style of A Game of Thrones. Additionally, I’m outlining a historical literary novel that retells the mythical siren as a Levantine songstress and dancer in 1939 Cairo and a speculative fiction that explores religion in the future. I’ve completed an upmarket project that sends a Palestinian daughter and her traditional mother on a trip across America to participate in a cooking contest. When I’m not working on my multitude of manuscripts, I work as a full-time consultant in Washington, D.C.

WRITING ACHIEVEMENTS

- Margins Writing Conference, Denver, CO – Anticipated August 7, 2022
Leading a writing workshop entitled Stranded in Submission Limbo: A Different Type of Torment wherein I discuss the process of submitting a manuscript to publishing houses and how to cope with the lengthy waiting periods and rejection. I will also provide best practices to combat imposter syndrome during the submission process.
- AWP Writing Conference, Philadelphia, PA – March 23-26, 2022
Co-lead a panel entitled Agented and On-Submission: A Special Kind of Torture. During the panel, I read a sample of my own manuscript and offered advice on how to survive the submission process and how to work on the next project while waiting for responses from Editors.
- Agent Moe YouTube Channel – January 1, 2021-Present
Scripted and filmed several episodes of a YouTube series aimed at unraveling the publishing world. I filmed videos on writing query letters, using comparable titles, word counts and proper novel lengths based on genre, and delineated how to find literary agents. Efforts to continue the channel are ongoing.
- Writing for Games – September 2020

Attended classes mentored by world-known narrative designer Susan O'Connor (Tomb Raider, Bioshock). Authored scripts for speculative games. Developed Twine narratives using creative writing techniques.

- Netflix MESSIAH – July 2016 – December 2019

Consulted the show writer on language and tradition-specific sections of the script. Conducted comprehensive research on multiple topics pertaining to the Levant region of the Middle East, specifically Israel/Palestine for the Netflix show MESSIAH. Gathered a list of important suggestions and changes that could improve particular scenes, especially culturally problematic ones. Correctly translated common phrases and idioms into Arabic and Palestinian dialect. Offered extensive suggestions on inquiries of lifestyle, history, politics and religions in the MENA region.

- Talcott Notch Literary Agency (Junior Agent) – November 2016-June 2017

Reviewed unsolicited and solicited manuscripts for publication as a junior literary agent. Compiled a successful marketing plan for the book. Requested and evaluate query letters from possible clients for representation. Wrote reader's reports on completed manuscripts and book proposals.

- Folio Literary Agency – June-December 2016

Reviewed unsolicited and solicited manuscripts for publication as an intern. Compiled a successful marketing plan for nonfiction books. Wrote reader's reports on completed manuscripts and book proposals. Compiled lists of potential ideas for nonfiction proposals. Communicated with clients to facilitate signing of agency contracts.

- Raya Literary Agency – January-August 2015

Reviewed unsolicited and solicited Arabic-language manuscripts for publication as an intern. Wrote reader's reports on completed manuscripts and book proposals.
